感染症を 防ぐため に 蚊にご注意を Beware of Mosquitos to Prevent Infectious Diseases

Mosquitoes can be carriers of infectious diseases such as dengue fever and Japanese encephalitis. To prevent infection, it is very important to avoid being bitten by mosquitoes and especially to prevent mosquito larvae from hatching, so please begin preparing now.

- ★ To prevent mosquitoes from hatching Eliminate standing water with mosquito larvae
 - ① Do not leave water in places such as the saucers under potted plants and flowerpots in the garden, etc.
 - ② Remove any water gathered in empty cans or plastic bottles, old tires, etc.
- ★ To avoid mosquito bites
 When entering areas with mosquitoes (grassy areas, etc.), wear long pants and long sleeves to avoid exposing your skin. When necessary, use insect repellant spray.

Wed., Jun. 1 - Fri. Sept. 30 is the Food Sanitation Summer Countermeasures Period Prevent Food Poisoning

The basics of preventing food poisoning are preventing contact with bacteria, keeping it from spreading, and eliminating it.

Please be aware of the following things at home:

- ① When buying food When buying meat, fish, and vegetables, be sure to buy fresh items
- ② Storing food
 Remember to put items requiring refrigeration or freezing straight into the refrigerator or freezer
- ③ Before cooking Be sure to sanitize cooking tools with hot water, etc.
- When cooking Be sure to cook food thoroughly with the right amount of heat
- (5) Always wash your hands before eating
- © Leftover food
 Do not leave food as it is and instead transfer it to a clean container. Be sure to heat it properly when reheating and finish any leftovers sooner rather than later.

6月は 動物の正しい飼い方 推進月間 とうぶつ ただ しい飼い方 推進月間 動物を理解し 正しい飼い方としつけを! June Is Proper Pet Ownership Promotion Month

Understand Your Pet and Provide Proper Training June is a month for activities meant to increase understanding about animals and encourage proper training and pet ownership that does not cause trouble to others.

Things to Be Aware of When Owning A Pet

- ① Please take care of and love your pets until they die.
- ② Pet owners are responsible for cleaning up their pets' waste (feces and urine).
- ③ If you do not want your pet to have children, be sure to have it spayed or neutered
- ④ Equip your pet with a license, name tag, microchip, etc. that includes the owner's name and address. If your pet is lost, take responsibility for searching for it. It may have been brought to the Animal Protection and Guidance Center.
- ⑤ Permission is required to keep dangerous animals as pets. Please consult with the Animal Protection and Guidance Center.
- © It is illegal to abandon pets. If you are no longer able to take care of your pet, please consult with the Animal Protection and Guidance Center.

To Dog-Owners

- ① Dogs should not be allowed to run around freely outside. Letting your dog loose in a park or on a road is dangerous, as it may bite or injure people. When walking your dog, be sure to use a leash.
- ② If your dog has bitten somebody, contact the Animal Protection and Guidance Center.
- ③ Be sure to register your dog and have it vaccinated for rabies once a year. Attach the license and proof of vaccination to its collar.

To Cat-Owners

Please keep cats indoors, as outdoor cats may enter other people's gardens and use them as litter boxes or scatter the garbage and cause trouble. There is also a possibility of your cat getting into a traffic accident or being infected with diseases by other cats if left outside.

Cat Adoption Event

It is possible to adopt cats that have been taken in at the Animal Protection and Guidance Center. Please come directly to the venue.
